

Denise A. James of STGi Named 2011 AAOHN Fellow

ALEXANDRIA, VA – May 12, 2011 – STG International Inc. (STGi) is proud to announce that the Deputy Director of Occupational Health, Ms. Denise A. James, MBA, BSN, RN, NE-BC, COHN-S/CM, has been selected as one of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses (AAOHN) Fellows for the Class of 2011.

The purpose of the Fellowship Award is to recognize leaders in the occupational and environmental health nursing field (OEHN) who demonstrate significant achievements in clinical practice, education, research, management or policy. Ms. James' contributions bolster both the management and policy portions of the OEHN arena, and STGi is proud of her accomplishments.

"It is a testament to the high caliber of our employees here at STGi that Denise has been awarded the prestigious AAOHN Fellowship Award," says President and CEO of STGi, Ms. Michelle S. Lee. "Such an accomplishment speaks volumes about the work Denise does each and every day, and we are so proud to have her as one of our key people making decisions and shaping policy that affect the occupational health community."

Winners of the Fellowship Award must be active AAOHN members. The group of Fellows is a small, elite group, and they are primarily responsible for providing the vision to advance skills and to influence the formation of policy. The Fellows are also responsible for contributing to research within the OEHN field and ensuring their work exemplifies the goal of effective practices in management and clinical settings.

"I am so honored to be named a 2011 Fellow by my peers in the OEHN field. It gives me great pride that I have been recognized as an expert in our field and that I am now a member of this select group of leaders. It is an exciting time to be an AAOHN fellow as we move into the next phase of leadership capacities – there is a lot we can do and I'm excited to be a part of the work."

AAOHN was founded in 1942 by 300 nurses in 16 states when they created the American Association of Industrial Nurses (AAIN). Their purpose was to improve occupational health services and improve career opportunities for occupational and environmental health nurses. Today, AAOHN has chapters worldwide, and its members span the ranks of healthcare and business.
