

STG International Raises the Bar in Government Healthcare Leadership with Three Strategic Hires

Alexandria, VA – November 2, 2009 – STG International announces the addition of three seasoned professionals to lead its skilled, credentialed medical workforce, with a particular focus on correctional healthcare.

To meet its expanding role providing the government with highly qualified, dedicated medical professionals at detention centers, military treatment facilities, veterans' community clinics, and wellness/fitness clinics across the country, STG International proudly brings Bryan Grove, Donald Bauknecht, and Mary Jo Cheuvront into the fold.

Bryan Grove, STG International's new Assistant Vice President of Healthcare Services, will be responsible for the successful performance of the company's Healthcare Services Division. Mr. Grove has extensive experience designing custom solutions for complex staffing requirements in the medical field, and he possesses a solid understanding of Federal needs, regulations and requirements. "With over 11 years of experience in staffing and development, I'm looking forward to providing strategic and tactical guidance that furthers STG International's stellar reputation for service and performance," said Grove.

Donald Bauknecht, STG International's new Assistant Vice President of Correctional Health Services, has more than 17 years of Federal correctional health experience. Bauknecht will oversee the day-to-day operational activities of STG International's Advisory Board for Detention Health. "Correctional health is a growing field, and I'm proud that my expertise and background will be able to help STG International in its evolving mission," said Bauknecht.

Mary Jo Cheuvront, STG International's new Business Development Director for Correctional Health Services, will leverage her 30 years of experience in management, business development, and nursing as she works to expand STG International's medical support presence in state and local correctional health. "It's rare that an opportunity comes along that's such a perfect fit," said Ms. Cheuvront. "I'm looking forward to spending the next phase of my career with STG International."

"It's common knowledge that having the right people makes all the difference in Federal, state, and local medical facilities," said Michelle Lee, president and CEO of STG International. "The right placements start from the top-down, which is why we're excited to bring three highly qualified and capable leaders on board. Their vision and enthusiasm will surely resonate throughout the organization. Together, we'll usher in a new era for correctional healthcare."
