

STG International Recognized for “Outstanding Health Clinic Award”

Alexandria, VA – October 24, 2008 – STG International (STG) is pleased to announce that our support to the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center has recently been highly ranked by NASA. An audit conducted by NASA last fall noted great improvements at the site as well as an exemplary devotion to the wellbeing of NASA employees. According to the report, “observations and interviews with staff and management of the Health Unit indicated a genuine commitment to an integrated Occupational Health Program.”

While the site received positive marks in a previous 2005 audit, there was still room for improvement. Our NASA team has been working hard to satisfy those recommendations and their improvement was recognized in last year’s audit. NASA’s reports showed a great satisfaction regarding the unit’s constantly improving quality of service. According to NASA, “The Clinic has made a conscious effort to address all findings...noted during our 2005 visit.” In response to that finding, NASA awarded the health unit with an Outstanding Health Clinic Award, an award presented once a year to the most outstanding clinic.

The health unit, located in Greenbelt, Maryland, provides medical attention for NASA employees who are injured while at work. They recognize the importance of Wellness Education and Preventative Screenings and work to ensure all NASA employees receive the most up-to-date Wellness information. The staff routinely treats astronauts, scientists, and pilots and can see upwards of 350 patients in a given month. The team also administers certification exams for divers who work with astronauts under water simulating working conditions in space. We are so very proud of our health unit and of all the hard work performed by the staff there each and every day!
