STG International Recently Hires 1000th Employee

– Milestone Celebrates the Company's Success –

Alexandria, VA – Oct. 20, 2006 – STG International, a premier provider of professional, medical and technical services to the federal government, recently hired its 1000th employee. What began almost 10 years ago with only one employee has today grown into a company with a presence in 33 states and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

The 1000th employee, Jason Charlton, is from Cleveland, Ohio. He was hired to work as a general legal assistant in the Mid-West Field Office of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Medicare Hearings and Appeals (OMHA). OMHA administers nationwide hearings for the Medicare program. In each of OMHA's four field offices in Irvine, CA, Cleveland, OH, Arlington, VA and Miami, FL, STG International provides administrative and legal support services to assist in the adjudication of Medicare appeals.

When the field office in Cleveland recently went through an expansion, OMHA required additional contract staff to support the increased workload of Medicare appeals. STG International provided OMHA with more than 30 qualified personnel, and Charlton was hired during the first round. STG International's recruiters have a knack of finding just the right applicant for the job. Charlton is no exception. He will be working alongside both federal and contract employees in the Cleveland office. In addition to researching and preparing cases relating to administrative appeals of civil service members, he will maintain the legal calendar, judge's staff telephones and office addresses, as well as information about local jurisdictions.

"The 1000th employee is not just a number, but a symbol of our success as an organization," said Ian Nuzzo, Project Manager at STG International. "I am honored to have been involved in hiring the 1000th STG employee."
