STGi Announces 2010 Head Start Contract Wins

Wins reinforce STGi's commitment to the early childhood education field.

ALEXANDRIA, VA, October 20, 2010 – STG International, Inc. (STGi), a leader in the field of early childhood education training and technical assistance (T/TA), announced today that it has been awarded several contracts to support Head Start T/TA efforts in regions throughout the country. The contracts will employ more than 80 early childhood education professionals, and will be effective immediately.

The national Head Start initiative promotes school readiness for young children by enhancing their social and cognitive development through educational, health, social, nutritional and other services. Since 2003, STGi has provided strategic technical assistance and consulting services to Head Start and Early Head Start programs across the nation, making STGi an industry leader in Training and Technical Assistance from coast to coast.

“We are pleased continue supporting Head Start programs throughout the country through these contracts,” said Dr. Myra Crouch, Director of Education and Technical Assistance Programs for STGi. “We pride ourselves on delivering high-quality training and staff development opportunities to a variety of Head Start professionals, and welcome this opportunity to continue to advance the nation’s early childhood development initiatives.”

STGi was awarded six contracts to provide top-notch training and technical assistance to Head Start grantees. The contracts will allow STGi to assist teachers and other Head Start professionals through training and career development, school readiness, and help with correction of deficiencies within individual programs.
